Keynote – GameTime Excellence : Peak Performance

Game Time Excellence is a system I have developed that stems from my career in the NFL and the journey starting from a nobody to becoming one of the best in the world at what I do. I have cracked the code on elite performance, and have work with some of the greats such as Tom Brady.. I know what makes the great...great and how you can become one of them in your field!

What I know is that there are 3 people in every locker room, in every staff, and every organization: The Champion, The Competitor, and The Content.

Takeaways: Mindset – You have to visualize your wins and be mentally tough to overcome change and setbacks. Self Awareness – You have take time to reflect and watch the film on your life to know your game plan and if you're following it. Continuous Improvement – Success requires a commitment to reinventing yourself, your brand and your organization continuously. There's no time to get stale. Commit to getting.Bigger...Stronger... Faster. Take Control – Be a player that does everything with purpose. Go the extra mile to create success.

During the workshop, we will be doing different activities to develop our mission, improve our mindset, master our habits, and work on a maintenance plan to stay in the game fully available 363 days out of the year.

Shamiel Gary

Former NFL player, inspirational speaker, author, & entrepreneur.

1:00 PM, Tuesday, June 21, 2022

Born and raised in Tulsa, Oklahoma, Shamiel Gary lived his dream as a professional football player in the National Football League, but the road to the NFL wasn't easy. Shamiel faced obstacles from every direction. It took hard work and perseverance to bring his 3rd-grade dream to life.

As a senior at Booker T. Washington High School, Shamiel had coaches who didn't believe in him. After the state championship, he received his only football scholarship from the University of Wyoming. During his freshman season at Wyoming, he won the 5A State Championship and earned Freshman All-American.

At the end of his sophomore season, Shamiel transferred to Oklahoma State University to be closer to his family while his grandmother battled Alzheimer's disease. In a single season, he went from being an All-American Safety to spending the 2011 season on the sidelines due to NCAA transfer rules.

In 2012, Shamiel hit the football field in full force. He started every game for the Cowboys, recording 72 tackles, 6 passes defended, 3 interceptions, and 1 forced fumble. As a senior, his pace continued, and the Cowboys placed 2nd in the Big 12 Conference.

After graduation in 2014, Shamiel entered the NFL as an undrafted free agent, signing with the New England Patriots. After separating his shoulder during the 2015 NFL pre-season with the Miami Dolphins, he was released on an injury settlement. He then found out his mother's cancer had returned. It was this release, this moment filled with uncertainty, that just so happened to be God's perfect timing. If Shamiel had not injured his shoulder, he would have still been in Miami. Instead, he got to spend every day and night in the hospital with his mother until she was able to get a second surgery.

Soon after this, Shamiel returned to Miami, Florida. For the first time in his life, his mother was able to watch her son play in an NFL game. After the season ended, Shamiel found himself in the same situation as before. He was again able to be with his mother, this time being her last days. Shamiel finished his football career with the Buffalo Bills.

Currently, Shamiel is impacting lives through professional speaking and mentoring. He loves reading books and soaking up time at the bowling alley.

Biography from Shamiel's website.

B112 – Fostering Resiliency in Students, Staff and Schools

Dick Ungar - Director of Engagement for the BARR Center

*#Resilience #RaisetheBARR
#SystemicResilience*

Over the past two years, the field of education was immersed in the unprecedented stresses brought on by COVID-19, school closings, financial crisis, and political divisiveness, as well as other individual and collective challenges for both students, families, and educators. As often one of the primary sources of support, schools are uniquely positioned to respond to the needs and challenges faced by these groups through fostering resiliency within the system, staff, and students. Building Assets, Reducing Risks (BARR) supports transformative school-system change by fostering resiliency on multiple levels including within the school system, with school staff, and with individual students. The model provides schools with a shared lens, belief system, and vocabulary to prioritize relationships and use of data to empower all individuals within the system and help cultivate a positive school climate, which provides the environment for all children and adults to develop resilience. (NOTE: Potential co-presentation from South Fargo High School which has been implementing BARR as an exemplar)

Starting in August, we had students who would benefit from this alternative choice at Home on the Range. Necessity dictated that Beach High School needed to drive the train before the tracks were completely built. Therefore, we immediately had to work through problems before things like course codes were even created. Stan lent us his expertise in shaping this process. Come learn about the issues, problems, and complications that come with implementing this new option. We will discuss how we have dealt with the problems and developed methods for implementing this optional high school curriculum as well as look at how you could utilize this option.

Robert Schafer - PowerSchool Specialist for Edutech

#StandardsImplementation

#DifferentiatedInstruction #IEP

Major Goal: To introduce you to Standards Implementation and moving your school/teachers to Standards instruction.

Description: The goal of this class is to do three things:

- First, help you better understand what Personalized Learning is. Defined as a diverse variety of educational programs, learning experiences, instructional approaches, and academic-support strategies that are intended to address the distinct learning needs, interests, aspirations, or cultural backgrounds of individual students.
- Second, help you better understand what Differentiated Instruction looks like, which is a tailoring instruction to meet individual needs. Whether teachers differentiate content, process, products, or the learning environment, the use of ongoing assessment and flexible grouping makes this a successful approach to instruction. And better yet, how PowerSchool and the PTPro Gradebook can support you in this process.
- Finally, help you know, as a teacher, how to put together IEPs for each student, which is a document and a process that students use with support from school counselors, teachers, and parents to define their career goals and post secondary plans in order to inform their decisions about their courses and activities throughout high school.
